

Frost & Sullivan recognizes CenturyLink with the 2018 Latin American Enterprise Services Provider Company of the Year Award

BUENOS AIRES, May 14, 2018 – Frost & Sullivan awarded CenturyLink, Inc. (NYSE: CTL) its prestigious 2018 Company of the Year Award for the Latin American enterprise service providers market, recognizing CenturyLink for its strong overall performance and effective strategy.

"After extensive research in this field, Frost & Sullivan firmly believes CenturyLink's outstanding infrastructure and service portfolio successfully address enterprises' unmet needs," said Ignacio Perrone, research manager, Latin America, information and communication technologies for Frost & Sullivan.

The award is based on Frost & Sullivan's research on best practices in growth, innovation and leadership across multiple business performance categories.

"CenturyLink's unparalleled expertise in the convergent telecom-IT services arena has earned the company an undisputed place as a full enterprise service provider. CenturyLink, like no other participant, raises the standard to the next level for a range of value-added, managed, and data center services, with a broad unified communications and collaboration solutions suite for the traditional Ethernet and broadband infrastructure," said Perrone.

As part of its analysis, Frost & Sullivan found many customers face big decisions when it comes to IT investments that will support their digital transformation and communications initiatives. Based on Frost & Sullivan's research, CenturyLink has positioned itself well, with products and services to help customers integrate existing platforms and bring new services online.

"Enterprises are facing an ever-changing technology landscape, with high-capacity demands, security concerns and the need to migrate to new platforms,” said Leonardo Barbero, product and marketing senior vice president for CenturyLink Latin America. “This recognition by Frost & Sullivan reinforces CenturyLink’s ongoing leadership in delivering a wide range of services that meet these needs.”
